

Lesson 3.1 .Literature search and review in research

This is an important lesson when the researcher starts preparing the writing for the research by doing Literature search. It proves useful at the pre- publication preparation of research writing.

This lesson deals with evaluation of various information sources before starting the research; teaches various means of examining bibliographic citations. The learner learns to assess Literature search and review in research.

The lesson also deals with the methods of comprehensive literature review for scientific research. It guides the learner to draft a comprehensive literature review. This lesson teaches/provides important pointers for web/internet based search and key techniques for online search focused only on for scientific research. It teaches various ways to evaluate internet /web based information sources for scientific research. also other information sources. It is especially useful to the studying postgraduates who are entering science research as well as Pre-Ph.D. researchers, doctoral and post-Doctoral researchers.